

Nikos Fokas

Professor, Eötvös Loránd, University of Budapest, fokata.bt@chello.hu

Guest Lecture

- “Post communism and political cleavages in Hungary and Romania.”, 3/4/2013

Nikos Fokas graduated from the Faculty of Natural Sciences of the Eötvös Loránd University of Budapest in 1977. He holds a PhD on Mathematical Methods in Sociology (1987) and a PhD on Sociology (1997). In 1987 he won the "Erdei Prize" (for the best young Hungarian sociologist of the year).

He is Professor and Head of Department of Sociology at Eötvös Loránd, University of Budapest, Director of the Research Institute of Greeks in Hungary and doctor of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. His teaching specialization is on Diffusion of Innovation, Dissemination Processes in Media, Social Networks, Political History of Modern Greece, Political Parties in Modern Greece, Social History of Hungary, Introduction to the Mathematics, Theory of the Probability, Mathematical Statistics, Game Theory in Social Sciences, Introduction to Chaos Theory, Fractals in Social Sciences.

He is member of the Board of Hungarian Sociological Association and president of the section for Quantitative Social Dynamic. Editor of the Hungarian Sociological Review (1997-2000) and of Replika, Hungarian Social Science Quarterly (1993- 1997). He has held Fellowships at the University of Athens, Dept. of Political Science, Program Erasmus (2003-2006), Széchenyi Professor Fellowship (1998 – 2001), University of Athens, Dept. of Political Science (1996, 1997), University of Amsterdam, Tempus (1997), Democritus University of Trace (1995), Lambrakis Research Foundation (1994), Athens Foundation for Mediterranean Studies, Athens (1988, 1990), Laboratory of Demography, Paris, France (1991).

Selected Recent Publications

- (2006) Növekedési függvények, társadalmi diffúzió, társadalmi változás, (Growth functions, social diffusion, and social change) Szociológiai Szemle, No. 3.
- (2006) A szenzáció, az örökzöld és a gumicsont (Sensation, Evergreen,) Jel-Kép No 3-4.
- (2007) Historical dimensions of political clientelism in Greece, in Fokasz (ed) Political clientelism as a social network in Greece (ed.) Új Mandátum Publishing Co.
- (2007) Örökzöldből szenzáció (From evergreen to sensation) In Sándor Péter, Vass László, Tolnai Ágnes (ed.) Magyarország politikai évkönyve, Hungarian Center for Democracy Studies,
- (2007) Δημιουργία εντυπώσεων, διαδικασίες διαδοσης στα media (Dissemination Processes in the Media) (With Oresztész Fokasz) Greek Political Science Review, Athens, Spring
- (2007) Growth functions, social diffusion, and social change Review of Sociology Vol. 13. (2007) I. 5-30.
- (2008) Evergreens, sensations and the rest. A quantitative analysis of dynamics of news articles on domestic politics Review of Sociology Vol. 14. (2008) I.
- (2009) Szezációk kettős szerepben (Sensations in double roles, Millieux de Mémoires and Lieux de Mémoires in the Media), Szociológiai Szemle, No. 4.
- (2010) Továbbszolgáló évtized (The lasting decade) Social Research No. 1. Forthcoming